HARRISBURG (AP) - Two! Roman Catholic nuns were killed and four others were injured Friday when their station wagon ran off Route 322 west of Hummelstown and over-

The nuns were from Sts. Cyril and Methodius Parish in Lebanon. They were returning from an educational television conference at Shiremanstown when the accident occurred.

Killed were Sister Padua, 30, a teacher at Sts. Cyril and Methodius School and a former resident of Mount Carmel, and Sister Dominic, 28, a teacher at Lebanon Catholic High School and a former resident of Bridgeport, Conn.

ONE IS CRITICAL

The four others were admitted to Harrisburg Hospital, where Sister Luke, also a teacher at Lebanon Catholic, was listed in critical condition with multiple injuries. She is a former resident of Torrington,

In unsatisfactory condition was Sister Henrietta, a teacher at Sts. Cyril and Methodius and formerly of Maine. She suffered a possible fractured hip.

Sister Gertrude, a teacher at St. Cyril and Methodius and formerly of Mount Carmel, and Sister Jerome, a teacher at Lebanon Catholic and formerly of Yonkers, N.Y., were listed in satisfactory condition.

ALL TEACHERS

Patrolman Thomas Smith of the Swatara Twp. police quoted witnesses as saying the car swerved on the four-lane highway, ran through guard rails, plunged down a 15-foot embankment, rolled over and landed upright in a field.

Smith said Sister Dominic apparently was driving the station

(Continued From Page 1) speakers, except two, had appeared, we were called, to be followed by a haughty, wealthy Southern woman who had moved north after her marriage a number of years before. She clung desperately to her animosity against the North through all those years.

Our brief talk, clinging to a broken hand microphone, was interspersed time and again by cat-calls, "damn Yankee" and others not so pleasant. When we had finished the flood-gates of hatred opened and the women dashed for the platform. We stepped down and started for the door, but that was not to be.

The women surrounded your reporter, not with love and embraces, but with lunging fists and clawing fingers. tugging at our coat, shouting and jeering, scratching our face time and again . . . all the while the lovely Southern lady from the North encouraged them with wild exhortations . . . "don't let them take our pappies and grandpappies up north to kill them.'

The melee went on for several minutes while we tried to move out of the room . . . not daring to so much as touch an assailant, but merely to ward off blows . . . and some of those Southern gals swung a mean punch.

However, we made our exit, eventually, and in our hotel room viewed the accomplishments of our southern "friends" . . . a bloody face (from scratches) and bloodsoiled suit and a disarray of shirt and hair that looked like the end of a brawl . . . a onesided brawl, because we had not struck a blow.

The Veterans accepted, for the third time, Pennsylvania's invitation and they came to Gettysburg and had a good time . . . as did thousands of other Southerners.

TIME TO PRUNE

There is a very fragrant purple-color violet named Semperflorens that arrives as the last snows disappear and blooms throughout the spring and much of the summer. The blooms of this hardy garden violet are large.

Growing good fruit is only part of the grower's concern. Delivering that on-tree quality to the consumer is considered equally important. Bulk handling with careful supervision of picking crews has helped; water-bath dumpers at packing house and processing plant is a further aid. Modern cold storages and controlled atmosphere storage preserves that quality for many months. FIVE PROMOTION

Belief in the merits of their products is obvious by the support which local growers give to promotional programs, Working through their own organization, the Adams County Fruitgrowers' Association, they promote fruit through an annual Apple Blossom Sunday event, and fruit shows.

Fruit growing is a dynamic industry in Adams County. It s that way because of the peoole who are in it. Older growhave encouraged the interest of their sons. The destiny the industry rests in the hands of this new generation of strong, young leaders . . . and it rests in good hands.

GARDEN LIVING IS HAPPIER THESE DAYS with landscaped patios, terraces and outdoor cooking and recreation areas in fashion across the country. Gardening has become a favorite pastime for many Americans who say that it is "good for the health." But, health isn't the only good part of gardening. The beauty that can be achieved with a bit of imagination and ingenuity is "good for the eyes," too.

"Junior Miss" Coronation Takes Place Friday

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

"Our contest is different," says reigning Junior Miss Felber of Colfax, Washington. "Furthermore, none of the 50 girls, one from each state, leave Mobile a loser. It's just that one is a little luckier. That's why I go around the country talking up the competition I never thought I ever had a chance, though my high school has sent a representative to the state event each year."

APPEARANCE LURE

And though Linda says "facial beauty" doesn't matter, an elusive quality called "attractive appearance" — of which she has plenty — certainly does count. For the first time, a nationwide television audience is having a chance to do some arm-chair judging of contest which has grown a long way from the local flower show pageant in Mobile, Ala.

With James Franciscus as emcee, NBC will be carrying the finals live from Mobile, Friday, March 19, 10-11 p.m. and, at the end of the hour, Linda will be handing over her crown to one of 50 lucky high school seniors (one representative from each state). All in all about 70,000 girls will have made a try for the title and all that goes with it.

"LOVE TO TRAVEL"

uled it mostly from Thursdays to Mondays so it wouldn't interfere with my school. And of course, the scholarship is the school and travel in the early future.

America's reigning "Junier Miss," Linda Felber, will give up her crewn next Friday on NBC at 10 p.m. at the culmination of a pageant to choose her successor. She's taking with her a batch of fine memories and a fet scholarship. At the right she is shown at school. She hopes to combine school and travel in the early future.

"Yes, I certainly was there ast year, most of the parents were, but we don't get to see that is our children at all. We stay stiff, and whatever the unknown poundage is, it seems to be just right. "Oh, I am athletic I swim competitively. In fact now I'm going out for track mostly because I like to keep giving myself new challenges."

Right away you revise your image of a track star. She has enormous hazel eyes and light hair.

Anyhow, as it became more outgoing, the organizers decided that it wouldn't be fair if Mobile girls took part too, so they are now the host-esses to the visitors. . . and they still continue their own Azalea Pageant and choose a Mobile girl as queen of that. And are they beautiful! Real southern helle types, beautiful antebellum gowns, and just as gracious as they can be."

OIL HEAT IS THEFTY

Everyone appreciates being independent and heating your home is no exception. A competitive climate keeps prices right. Thrift is realized also by buying your fuel when prices are lowest and arranging for budget payments. Beyond thrift there is the peace of mind that your source of fuel is right in your home, and the safety feature of nonexplosive fuel oil.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

Likens Electric Heat To "Hi-Fi"

Electric heat is "the hi-fi equivalent in the home heating field," according to a featured speaker at a builders' meeting.

"Electric heat gives a precision of comfort," he explains, "that makes previous types of heating seem downright crude. Once you become attuned to selecting just the temperature you want, anything less is jarring."

There is a big difference, however, in "the tune-in."
"Thank goodness, though, that getting the heat just sight is an easy as one two; flip the switch, adjust the thermostat dial and that's it. When it comes to the hi-fi, the music-variety, that is, I make pretty complicated work of getting everything all clear."

He further notes that just as the hi-fi addict assembles top grade equipment, so should an electric heat user "provide a sound, well insulated construction to get the maximum usage from electrical heat which in itself is, unlike any other fuel, 100% usable."

Individual Thermostats

"It can't be said too eften," he stresses, "the thermostat in every room that's possible with electric heat brings each room to the desirable temperature at a given time. Babies playing on the floor? You can make it properly warm for them. Dad working at his basement lathe? He probably wants the temperature at 65; and with electric heat he gets what he wants.

"A family suddenly finds it's living in a well-orchestrated house. Everything comfort-wire is in harmony."

Equipment Explained

There is a variety of unit type available for electrical heating. The most popular in this area are still electric base-boards, radiant ceiling cable and wall panels.

All give satisfaction. Sometimes one will be given the preference for a given house style. Or, sometimes one, two, or even all three types will be used in a single house. The choice is usually best left to the discretion of the electrical contractor.

An added plus with the electrical heating units is, "though they do an imcomparable heating job, the units themselves are never more than just warm to the touch of a hand."

QUESTION BOX

Q. When planning on electric baseboards must they border the entire room?

room?

A. Most likely not unless there is some unusual design factor about the room itself. Baseboard units can be assembled and placed in an infinite number of ways, fitting into corners, recessed under windows, etc., etc.

Q. Is electrical heat more expensive?

A. Prices have dropped so rapidly that it is now competitive. Experts in the field state that electric heat can prove cheaper in the long run—as well as most modern—because life expectancy of the equipment is much greater than any other type and because maintenance cost run anywhere from minimal to nil.

Q. Is there a size difference in the fans recommended in an electrically heated

A. Kitchen fans should provide a minimum of 15 changes per hour, and bathroom fans a minimum of 12 changes per hour.

Q. Why is mechanical ventilation necessary in an electrically heated home? A. Construction standards

A. Construction standards for houses with complete electric heating systems specify "tightness" to assure maximum comfort during climate extremes. Obviously this also lowers operating costs for heating . . and incidentally also for air conditioning if it is used in the summer. The mechanical ventilation, therefore is the "balancer" which counteracts humidity building.

Q. We have been discussing our new house but do not really understand what the builder means by "R" in relation to insula-

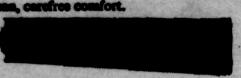

A. Since there are many types of insulation, some set in, some poured in, some suitable for one location and not another, the old custom of designating in inches has been deemed not exact enough. The National Mineral Wool Association has researched and determined what the desirable insulation should be and indicates this measurement as "R" which stands for installed resistance.

Q. How can electric heat

A. Because the electricity goes right to the room heating unit. With this "most modern fuel" there is no need for pipes or ducts.

Why not? Chromalox Electric Baseboard Heaters take the place of old-fashioned, space-robbing furnaces . . . fit snugly along your outside walls and heat your entire home. No duct work, no motors, no fans, no pipes . . . and . . . no soot, no dust, no fumes, no flames, no drafts! Just clean, carefree comfort.

Chromalox Electric Baseboard Heaters install like ordinary baseboard trim along outside walls. Quick, easy, inexpensive installation . . . for new homes or home moderalsing.

With a thermostat in every room, you have complete temperature control. And you can install electric heat for substantially less than any other heating system that provides comparable comfort. Operating costs will vary, depending on the number of rooms to be heated and the type of construction. We'll be glad to show you how little it will cost to install and operate Chremalon Electric Heat in your home. Just give us a call.

BUDGET GONE TO THE D065...

TIMES' QUICK-ACTION CLASSIFIED ADS ARE THE ANSWER

Every day wise families turn to classified ads to quickly convert the things they are no longer using into extra cash they need.

Look around your home. What about that musical instrument no one ever plays? Or that piece of furniture you no longer use, and there is that piece of sporting equipment you never use. It's easy to find a market for such items when you sell though the classified ads. Right now cash buyers are waiting for those things (and many more) in the classified section of The Gettysburg Times.

Decide now to start winning your "battle of the budget" with a money-making Gettysburg Times classified ad. Classified ads are inexpensive too, as low as 11c per line, per day, when ad appears 7 consecutive times or more. Make your list out and call today . . .
